LET US FURTHER STRENGTHEN THE SOCIALIST SYSTEM OF OUR COUNTRY

Speech of Comrade KIM IL SUNG at the First Session of the Fifth Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea

(December 25, 1972)

(All rise. Comrade Kim Il Sung appears on the rostrum amid thunderous applause, rousing cheers and shouts of "Long live the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung!" shaking the hall.)

Comrade Deputies,

The election to the Fifth Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea was held successfully at a time when all of our people were making a new great revolutionary upswing on all fronts of socialist construction, upholding the decision of the historic Fifth Congress of the Workers' Party of Korea, and the whole nation was seething with a burning aspiration for independent peaceful reunification. (Loud applause.)

All our citizens, with a great pride and sense of honour as citizens of the DPRK, actively participated in the election and expressed their unreserved support for and profound trust in our Party and the Government of the Republic. (Prolonged thunderous applause.) This election strengthened our revolutionary power still more, consolidating the revolutionary base of the northern half of the Republic. (Thunderous applause.)

On behalf of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Government of the Republic, I would like to express warm thanks to the entire people for their unreserved support for and deep trust in our Party and the Government of the Republic manifested in the recent election. (All rise. Prolonged thunderous applause shaking the hall.)

Comrades, twenty-four years have elapsed since the Korean people embarked on the creation of a new society and a new life under the banner of the Republic, with a genuine people's Constitution, the first of its kind in their history. In this period our people, under the wise leadership of the Workers' Party of Korea, have made great achievements in the socialist revolution and building of socialism. (Thunderous applause.) During these years there has really been a great transformation in this country and epoch-making changes have taken place in the political, economic and cultural aspects of our people's life. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

Our realities today urgently demand the establishment of a new Socialist Constitution legally to consolidate the tremendous achievements of our people in the socialist revolution and building of socialism and lay down principles for the political, economic and cultural spheres of socialist society. Therefore, we formed the Commission for the Drafting of the Socialist Constitution of the DPRK and prepared a draft Socialist Constitution. The draft Socialist Constitution of the DPRK was discussed at plenary meetings of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and considered at the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland before it was submitted to the Supreme People's Assembly.

The adoption of the Socialist Constitution of the DPRK at the current session of the Supreme People's Assembly will be a great historic event in our people's revolutionary struggle and work of construction. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

1. The Struggle of the Government of the Republic for the Socialist Revolution and Building of Socialism

Comrades,

The socialist revolution is the most deep-going social transformation in the history of mankind to abolish exploitation of man by man once and for all and open up a new path of social progress.

If the working class and the Marxist-Leninist Party that fight to liberate the masses of the people from exploitation and oppression and guarantee them a happy life are to fulfil their historical mission, they must lead the people to carry out the socialist revolution. Only when the people who have extricated themselves from the colonial enslavement of imperialism take the road to socialism, can they be completely liberated from class exploitation and national oppression, and enjoy a free and happy life and achieve their country's sovereignty and independence and national prosperity.

In our country the socialist revolution started after the carrying out of the anti-imperialist, anti-feudal democratic revolution in the northern half following liberation. It is the legitimate process of revolutionary development that the anti-imperialist, anti-feudal democratic revolution led by the working class goes over to the socialist revolution.

After the anti-imperialist, anti-feudal democratic revolution had been carried out, our country had the socialist economic sector consisting mainly of the state-run economy, as well as the small-commodity sector consisting of the individual peasant economy in the countryside and the urban handicraft economy and the capitalist economic sector of capitalist trade and manufacture in towns and the rich peasant economy in the rural areas.

As long as the capitalist economic and small-commodity sectors are left intact, it is impossible to thoroughly eradicate the sources of exploitation and poverty and completely free the productive forces of society from the shackles of the old production relations and speedily develop the nation's economy as a whole in a planned way. Therefore, in order to completely free our people from all sorts of exploitation and oppression and rapidly develop the country's productive forces, we had to carry out the socialist revolution upon the completion of the democratic revolution.

Furthermore, we had to do this in order to strengthen the unity and solidarity of the entire people based on the worker-peasant alliance on a new socialist foundation, wipe out the footholds of reactionaries and the hotbed breeding old ideas and reinforce the political basis of the revolution.

Our people thus entered the period of transition to socialism immediately following the democratic revolution. However, in the days of peaceful construction our socialist revolution was only started partially; it was still in the preparatory stage. Because of the war forced on us by the U.S. imperialists the socialist transformation in the northern half had to be interrupted temporarily, and our socialist revolution started virtually after the war.

The postwar socio-economic conditions in the northern half of the Republic urgently demanded the full-scale acceleration of the socialist revolution.

The war harshly damaged the material and technological foundations of agriculture and impoverished not only the poor peasants but also middle and rich peasants to the extreme. After the war our countryside was very short of draught animals, farm implements and manpower, and a shortage of food and clothing was also acute. Since agriculture was so severely damaged, the further maintenance of the individual peasant economy would have made it impossible to speedily restore the productive forces of agriculture and solve the food problem that became very serious after the war. Unless the ruined productive forces of agriculture were rapidly restored and the food problem solved promptly, there was the danger that the development of industry and the national economy in general would be retarded and there would arise a serious disparity between industry, which was being rebuilt and developed quickly in a planned way, and agriculture, which was being rehabilitated slowly. In addition, if the small peasant economy had been left intact, we would not have been able to rapidly improve the living conditions of our impoverished peasants and, particularly, to solve the problem of poor peasants whose number increased during the war. In a word, the limitations of the individual peasant economy in our country manifested themselves most strikingly in the postwar years and we could not allow them to exist any longer. The only way to overcome these limitations after the war was the cooperativization of agriculture. (Prolonged loud applause.)

The war also greatly impoverished individual trade and manufacture in towns. The capitalist traders and manufacturers suffered such a heavy damage that they were reduced to narrow circumstances just as the handicraftsmen and small merchants. After the war the entrepreneurs and merchants were unable to restore their damaged economy or live on by themselves. The only way out for these impoverished entrepreneurs and merchants was to work collectively, pooling their efforts and funds with the assistance of the State, that is, to take the socialist path. It was not only the demand of our revolution but also an objective necessity emanating from the conditions of the capitalist traders and manufacturers to lead them to follow the road to socialism after the war.

We had to step up the socialist revolution full scale after the war also in order to strengthen the revolutionary base of the northern half of the Republic. Only by continuing to accelerate the revolution in the north was it possible to turn it into a strong base guaranteeing national reunification and the nation-wide victory of the revolution. Therefore, the continued and vigorous acceleration of the revolution in the northern half was not only the demand of the revolutionary development in the north itself but also the fundamental demand of the advancement of the Korean revolution as a whole.

On the basis of a scientific analysis of the revolutionary situation created in our country after the war, our Party considered the postwar period the most appropriate stage for the socialist revolution, and in its April 1955 Theses, set forth the policy to step up the socialist revolution on a full scale. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

What is most important in transforming the old production relations in town and country and establishing the unchallenged sway of the socialist production relations is the cooperativization of the individual peasant economy.

In the light of the specific postwar situation in our country our Party and the Government of the Republic advanced a policy to transform the economic forms along socialist lines prior to the technological reform of agriculture, and powerfully carried out the agricultural cooperative movement. (Thunderous applause.)

Since the socialist transformation of agriculture was urgently demanded by the revolution after the war, we could not postpone agricultural cooperativization simply because the economy had been damaged and our technological development was still at a low level. The decisive condition for agricultural cooperativization lies not in whether agriculture is equipped with modern technology but in whether this cooperativization is a vital demand of the peasants themselves, whether the revolutionary forces are prepared to carry it out. (Thunderous applause.) As Marxism-Leninism teaches us, even a collective economy that merely pooled the peasants' land and farm implements could achieve an improvement in the economy that would be impossible in the individual small peasant economy, and could multiply the productivity of labour. Thus, our Party waged a struggle to transform economic forms first to meet the urgent demands of social development, instead of waiting until industrialization was carried out. (Thunderous applause.) As a result, we could rapidly restore and develop the productive forces of agriculture severely destroyed by the war and dynamically push ahead with the technical revolution in the countryside in keeping with industrial development. (Loud applause.)

In guiding the agricultural cooperative movement, our Party and the Government of the Republic strictly observed the voluntary principle.

Our Party categorically rejected the coercive method in this movement and adopted a number of correct policies to induce the peasants to join the cooperative economy voluntarily. (Loud applause.)

Object lessons in the cooperative movement are the most ideal way of persuading the peasants engaged in centuries-old individual farming to join cooperative farming voluntarily. We intensified the ideological education of the peasants, and at the same time, set an experimental stage and strove to show them the advantages of the cooperative economy by practical example.

In consideration of the fact that the land remained the private property of the peasants and their property status and their ideological awareness varied, we laid down three forms of agricultural cooperative economy and led the peasants to choose any form according to their will. In pooling the peasants' means of production, we saw to it that according to their desire, draught animals and farm implements were pooled or were left under private ownership for a certain period while being used jointly, and when they were pooled, due compensation was made without fail. These measures taken by our Party helped the peasants of different strata to readily accept the policy of cooperativization and made it possible to prevent different deviations which might have appeared in the course of the cooperative movement. (Thunderous applause.)

In drawing the peasants of various strata into the cooperative farming according to the voluntary principle, our Party followed the class policy of relying firmly on the poor peasants, strengthening the alliance with the middle peasants, and restricting and gradually remoulding the rich peasants. (Applause.)

Our Party first organized a few agricultural cooperatives in each county on an experimental basis with the poor peasants and the core elements of the countryside who had most actively supported the agricultural cooperativization and consolidated them and, on this basis, developed the cooperative movement. And it brought the poor peasants to play the leading role at all agricultural cooperatives. It also made sure that cooperatives were not organized exclusively with well-to-do peasants and that the rich peasants were not allowed to influence the work of the agricultural cooperatives. At the same time, it strictly guarded against the tendency to force the middle peasants into the cooperative economy or infringe upon their interests to weaken the alliance with them, and demonstrated the superiority of the cooperative economy to the middle peasants through the competition between individual and cooperative farmings. As for the rich peasants, we did not expropriate and eliminate them but brought them to join cooperatives voluntarily, restricting their exploitative aspect.

Throughout the period of the agricultural cooperative movement our Party and the Government of the Republic persistently carried out the organizational and political work among the peasants, and, relying on socialist industry, gave enormous material and technical assistance in diverse forms to agricultural cooperatives and helped them in terms of manpower. Such guidance and assistance played a decisive role in both shoring up the weak agricultural cooperatives organized with poor peasants in the incipient stage to show their advantages over the individual economy and consolidating the cooperative economic system politically and economically. (Loud applause.)

Thanks to all these intelligent and creative policies of our Party and the Government of the Republic, our agricultural cooperative movement proceeded quite smoothly and came to victorious completion only in four or five years. (Thunderous applause.)

To establish an undivided sway of socialist production relations in town and country, it is required to carry out the socialist reorganization of individual trade and manufacture as well as agricultural cooperativization.

In the early days of the transition period, our Party began the cooperativization of handicraft on an experimental basis, and in the postwar period, energetically pushed it forward, carrying it out successfully in a brief time. (Loud applause.)

In the socialist reorganization of individual trade and manufacture, our Party and the Government of the Republic devoted special attention to the transformation of capitalist trade and manufacture. Taking into account the characteristic features of capitalist trade and manufacture in our country, our Party adopted the line of remoulding the capitalist traders and manufacturers along socialist lines, instead of expropriating them.

The national capitalists in colonial, semi-feudal society, though inconsistent, have some revolutionary spirit and are keenly interested in the anti-imperialist, anti-feudal democratic revolution. In the light of such characteristics of these capitalists, we drew them over to the side of the revolution and, together with them, carried out the national-liberation struggle and the democratic revolution. From the first, it was our policy in regard to the national capitalists not only to carry out the anti-imperialist, anti-feudal democratic revolution together with them, but also to take them along to socialist, communist society. (Loud applause.) Therefore, we did not expropriate entrepreneurs and traders in the stage of socialist revolution even though the capitalist traders and manufacturers were the targets of the revolution. Moreover, we had no need to expropriate them because capitalist trade and manufacture were totally destroyed in the war and the entrepreneurs and traders supported the Party's line of socialist revolution. And they had nothing we could expropriate from either.

Hence, our Party adopted the line of transforming capitalist trade and manufacture along socialist lines and saw to it that capitalist traders and manufacturers were drawn into diverse forms of cooperative economy in strict observance of the voluntary principle as all necessary conditions were ripe after the war. (Loud applause.)

We first strengthened producers' cooperatives formed of handicraftsmen and then gradually drew entrepreneurs into the cooperative economy; we organized marketing cooperatives or production-and-marketing cooperatives with individual traders and progressively increased the proportion of production in those cooperatives so as to reorganize them into cooperatives entirely engaged in production. Under the Party's wise guidance, our socialist transformation of capitalist trade and manufacture progressed at a very high rate and was completed in 1958 almost simultaneously with agricultural cooperativization. (Loud applause.)

With the successful accomplishment of the historic task of the socialist transformation of the old production relations in town and country, an advanced socialist system free from exploitation and oppression was established in the northern half of our country. (Prolonged thunderous applause.) The victory of the socialist system in the north opened up a highway for the further promotion of socialist construction and the radical improvement of the people's material and cultural welfare. (Thunderous applause.)

Comrades, our Party and the Government of the Republic forcefully pushed forward the struggle for socialist construction relying on the triumphant socialist system.

In socialist construction our Party held fast to the principle of energetically carrying on both the work of laying the material and technological foundations for socialism and the work of educating and remoulding people on communist lines, that is, the struggles to seize the material and ideological fortresses for the building of communism. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

Socialist economic construction is one of the most important revolutionary tasks facing the Party and State of the working class. Only when socialist economic construction is carried out successfully is it possible to attain the high level of development of the productive forces commensurate with socialist society and systematically improve the people's material and cultural standards and firmly secure the political independence and sovereignty of the country.

Our people's struggle for socialist economic construction went through the three stages—the stage of postwar rehabilitation and construction, the stage of laying the basis of industrialization and the stage of completing industrialization. At every stage of socialist economic construction our Party and the Government of the Republic set forth correct lines and policies which suited our specific conditions and organized and mobilized all Party members and working people to a powerful struggle for their implementation. (Loud applause.)

Over the whole period of socialist economic construction our Party has consistently adhered to the basic line of socialist economic construction on giving priority to the growth of heavy industry simultaneously with the development of light industry and agriculture. (Thunderous applause.)

This basic line is a correct line built on the coherent analysis of the requirements of the law of our postwar economic development and actual possibilities. (Thunderous applause.) It is also a creative application of the Marxist-Leninist theory on extended reproduction in conformity with our specific conditions; it is a correct line which renders it possible to guarantee the balances between the different branches of the national economy and attain a high rate of production growth. (Thunderous applause.)

Along that line our Party and the Government of the Republic gave priority to the creation of heavy industry with engineering industry as its core.

Our Party's line in the building of heavy industry was to create our own solid bases of heavy industry which would be able to produce at home most of the raw materials, fuel, power, machines and equipment needed for the development of the national economy by relying on the rich natural resources and source of raw materials in our country. In order to build firm bases of heavy industry we rebuilt and expanded the existing factories in this field and, at the same time, built new industrial branches and a number of factories and other enterprises. In building heavy industry, we ensured that this industry was built not for its own sake, but for the sake of more effectively serving the development of light industry and agriculture and the improvement of the people's living standards. This policy of our Party has enabled us to build a powerful heavy industry of our own with rather small funds, thereby rapidly developing light industry and agriculture. (Thunderous applause.)

Today ours has grown into a powerful heavy industry with all its key branches, and its strength has increased considerably. (Loud applause.) In particular, our engineering industry has made rapid progress. It has reached such a level as to produce different kinds of large and precision machines and the complete sets of equipment for modern factories. (Loud applause.)

Our Party and the Government of the Republic have directed much efforts to the growth of light industry as well.

In this regard, our Party maintained the policy of simultaneously developing large-scale, nationally-controlled industries and the medium- and small-scale local industries. Our Party and the Government of the Republic saw to it that large modern factories of nationally-controlled light industry were established, and at the same time, many local-industry factories were set up by extensively using local reserves and that the technological reconstruction of local industry was actively pushed forward.

The policy of simultaneous development of the central and local industries has helped to increase rapidly the production of consumer goods with no major capital investment from the State, and to guarantee a high rate of development of the national economy as a whole by concentrating the State funds on heavy and nationally-controlled light industries. The growth of local industry has also made it possible to purchase and process in season the farm and side-line products of the peasants, bolstering up their living standards rapidly and improving the supply of consumer goods for the urban dwellers as well.

As a result of the successful implementation of our Party's policy in the development of light industry, large, modern factories of nationally-run light industry and thousands of local factories have now come into being, and their technological equipment has been improved to a marked extent. Our light industry has now grown into a firm base for the production of various consumer goods, capable of meeting the working people's demand. (Thunderous applause.)

The rational distribution of the productive forces is of great importance for a further development of the national economy as a whole and for successfully carrying out the long-term programme of socialist and communist construction.

In distributing the country's productive forces our Party and the Government of the Republic followed the principle of bringing factories and other enterprises closer to the sources of raw materials and the consumer areas, of guaranteeing the balanced development of the different branches of the national economy and all the regions of the country, and rapidly narrowing down the difference between town and country. In rebuilding the national economy after the war, we, in accordance with this principle, dispersed new factories and enterprises in different areas, while rebuilding many factories and enterprises where they had been in order to guarantee the speed of rehabilitation and save the funds. As a result, new industrial towns came into being all over the country, the integrated bases for industrial production were built in local areas and the previous defects and irrationalities in the distribution of industries were completely eliminated. (Loud applause.)

The rational industrial distribution enabled us to effectively use our natural resources and manpower to speed up the socialist economic construction and proportionately develop all the areas of the country. It also helped to consolidate the worker-peasant alliance by strengthening the political, economic and cultural ties between the working class and the peasantry, to eliminate the backwardness of the countryside and drastically diminish distinctions between town and country and class difference between the workers and peasants, by increasing the assistance of industry to agriculture and the support of towns for the countryside. (Loud applause.) Moreover, it prevented the excessive concentration of factories and population in a few cities as well as environmental pollution, which poses a great social problem in capitalist countries nowadays. (Applause.)

One of the cardinal tasks in the socialist economic construction is that of rapidly developing agriculture. Our Party and the Government of the Republic strove to consolidate the material and technological foundations of agriculture and increase its production while cooperativizing the individual peasant economy. In particular, we gave top priority to the ideological revolution in the countryside, in accord with our Party's programme of socialist rural construction, "Theses on the Socialist Rural Question in Our Country," and, at the same time, vigorously carried on the technical and cultural revolutions.

Irrigation was a primary task in the technical revolution in our countryside. In the years that followed the armistice the Government of the Republic carried on many irrigation projects in step with the agricultural cooperative movement and, with the completion of cooperativization, pushed ahead with the irrigation programme in a nationwide movement. In our country the irrigation of paddyfields has now been completed and many non-paddyfields have been irrigated, and the drainage projects have been completed in our major rice-producing areas. Thus our peasants' centuries-old desire to do farming free from drought and flood has come true. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

The Government of the Republic made sure that many medium and small power stations were built side by side with large ones and thus carried out successfully the task of rural electrification. Every ri in this country now has electricity and every farm house has electric lights. In the countryside, electricity is used extensively not only for the cultural, home lives of the peasants but also as a source of power for machines and of heat in agricultural production.

The Government of the Republic has also devoted much efforts to mechanization and the use of chemicals in agriculture. Our Party and the Government of the Republic have guaranteed that tractors, trucks and different kinds of efficient farm machines, chemical fertilizers and agricultural chemicals were produced in large quantities for the countryside. As a result, the level of mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture has risen greatly and our peasants are gradually being freed from hard and backbreaking work.

Agricultural production has rapidly increased with the progress of the rural technical revolution. Our countryside where poverty and ignorance prevailed before, has now become a rich modern socialist countryside. (Thunderous applause.)

Training our cadres was a matter of vital importance in this country which was once a backward colony. Right after liberation, our nation had very few cadres, and this was a big snag in running the State and building our economy and culture. Therefore, our Party and the Government of the Republic devoted much efforts to training our own cadres and, in particular, actively endeavoured to train a large army of technicians capable of carrying out socialist construction which was proceeding full scale after the war. We developed the regular system of higher learning along with various plans offering higher education for those who were on the job, and firmly established comprehensive cadre-training bases in local areas. Consequently, our country now has a large contingent of some 500,000 technicians and specialists. They are excellently managing State and economic organizations and cultural institutions, and modern factories, enterprises and cooperative farms. (Thunderous applause.)

Our people's struggle for the socialist revolution and building of socialism was carried on under the very difficult conditions of the enemy's ceaseless aggressive manoeuvres. In order to defend the country and the people and safeguard the gains of the revolution against the enemy's aggression, our Party and the Government of the Republic paid great attention to increasing our defence capabilities in the whole course of the revolution and construction work. In particular, we advanced the new line of simultaneously carrying on economic and defence construction in the light of the intensified aggressive manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists, and reorganized the whole work of socialist construction in a revolutionary way and directed greater efforts to defence building. In order to perfect our national defence we diverted a large amount of manpower and material resources to it, even though this proved detrimental to economic construction to a certain degree, and vigorously organized and mobilized the entire people for the implementation of the Party's military line. As a result, our People's Army has now grown up to be an invincible revolutionary armed force; all our people have been armed and the whole country has been fortified. (Prolonged thunderous applause.) We can confidently say that we have the defence power strong enough to repulse the invasion of any and all enemies, defend our country and people and safeguard the revolutionary gains. (Loud applause.)

Educating and transforming people along communist lines is one of the most important tasks of socialist and communist construction.

Man is the master of nature and society and the main factor that decides everything. The masses of the people are masters of socialist society, and it is also they who are able to promote the revolution and construction work. Therefore, if we are to build socialism and communism, we must not only lay the country's firm material and technological foundations but also educate and remould people, masters of society, along communist lines and bring their creative wisdom and revolutionary enthusiasm into full play.

Our Party and the Government of the Republic advanced a correct line and policy to educate and remould the people at every stage of the revolution and construction, and worked hard to implement them. (Thunderous applause.) In the period of socialist revolution we strove to turn all members of society into socialist working people through the close combination of the transformation of economic forms with the remoulding of people. After the triumph of the socialist system, we vigorously pushed forward the work of reeducating the people along communist lines, on the basis of the line of revolutionizing and working-classing the whole society.

In educating and remoulding people, our Party and the Government of the Republic have always adhered to the principle of raising the ideological preparedness, the sense of organization and cultural standard of the working class and of educating and remoulding the peasants and intellectuals after the model of the working class.

We increased the class awareness of the workers, first of all, by strengthening political and ideological work among them, constantly tempered them in actual production and waged an energetic struggle for the organizational and ideological consolidation of the ranks of the working class. This greatly increased the vanguard role of the working class in the revolution and construction and strengthened their revolutionary influence on the working people. (Loud applause.) Our working class has now become the most advanced and revolutionary class who, instead of working for a few pennies, work with all devotion for the prosperity and progress of the country and the freedom and happiness of the people. They are admirably discharging their duties as the leading class of the Korean revolution. (Thunderous applause.)

Our Party and the Government of the Republic also paid great attention to educating and remoulding the peasantry, one of the main forces of the revolution. By intensifying the working class guidance and assistance to the countryside we have accelerated the technical and cultural revolutions there and, on the other hand, energetically pushed forward the ideological revolution. As a result, the peasants' level of ideological consciousness has risen markedly and they have formed a revolutionary and communist way of life. (Loud applause.) As reliable builders of socialism our peasants are today faithfully working for society and the collective, and are striving to supply more food to the workers and all other working people and turn out enough raw materials for light industry. (Loud applause.)

The working class that has assumed power should solidly build up the ranks of intellectuals. This is essential for the rapid development of science and technology, literature and art and for the successful building of socialism and communism. In the whole course of the revolution and construction, our Party and the Government of the Republic have perseveringly carried on the education of intellectuals and, in particular, directed great efforts to the education and remoulding of old intellectuals. With the implementation of the Party's policy on the education and remoulding of our intellectuals, they have been transformed into socialist working intellectuals and are confidently advancing along the road indicated by the Party. (Loud applause.) Our intellectuals are working not for fame or glory but for the Party and the revolution and the country and the people with all their knowledge and talents, and are fighting vigorously side by side with the workers and peasants in the same revolutionary ranks to consolidate and develop our socialist system. (Loud applause.)

The education and remoulding of the working people is a work to liquidate all the outworn ideas remaining in their minds and their old habits and arm them with the revolutionary idea of the working class, communist ideology. Our Party and the Government of the Republic, therefore, have conducted the work of educating and remoulding people by means of explanation and persuasion with the main emphasis on ideological education. We intensified the education of the working people in Party policy and, at the same time, patiently carried on the communist education with the class education as its main content, so that all the working people have been armed closely with the advanced revolutionary ideas of the working class, communist ideology.

Strengthening revolutionary organizational life is one of the important ways to educate and remould people along communist lines. Our Party and the Government of the Republic have paid serious attention to encouraging all the working people to take an active part in organizational life, voluntarily observe organizational discipline and conduct their life under the guidance and supervision of the organization. In particular, we have carried on the ideological struggle by the method of criticism and given revolutionary tempering to the working people through the ideological struggle.

Our Party and the Government of the Republic closely combined the practical activities with the work of educating and remoulding people through the Chollima workteam movement, and guaranteed that this work became the work of the masses themselves.

With the successful progress of the education and remoulding of the working people in a communist way, a great change has taken place in the political and ideological life of our people and our revolutionary ranks have been strengthened and developed into an invincible force. (Thunderous applause.)

Under our Party's wise guidance the Government of the Republic has achieved really great successes in the revolutionary struggle and work of construction in the past years. (Thunderous applause.) It has established the most advanced socialist system in this land where exploitation and oppression prevailed before, and converted our backward colonial agrarian country in a very short time into a socialist power with its solid independent national economy and enormous defence capacities. (Thunderous applause.) It has brought about a brilliant efflorescence and development of science and culture and achieved great success also in the work of revolutionizing and working-classing the whole society. (Thunderous applause.)

We have won great victories in the socialist revolution and building of socialism and risen to an eminence which lies on our way to socialism and communism. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

2. The Superiority of Our Socialist System

Comrades,

The remarkable successes achieved in all spheres of politics, economy and culture since the triumph of our socialist revolution are graphic evidence of the superiority and indestructible vitality of our socialist system.

Our socialist system is the best social system under which the working masses are masters of everything and everything in society serves the working masses. (Thunderous applause.)

The working masses transform nature and society and make history. The creative labour and struggle of the working masses produce all the material riches of society and bring about social renovation and progress. That is why the working masses should become masters of society and enjoy all the material wealth.

Not in every society, however, the working masses are the masters of the community. The people's social status is determined by whether or not they hold State power and means of production in their hands. Only those who have them can be the masters of society.

In an exploiter society, the toiling masses are not the masters of society but victims of exploitation and oppression, suffering from all sorts of humiliations and insults to their person, because they have no State power and no means of production. In capitalist society where money is everything, even the dignity of a man is weighed by the amount of money he has; the poor people are treated like goods.

Only in socialist society can the working masses enjoy an independent and creative life as real masters of society. Today all our government policies are geared to the interests and happiness of the workers, peasants and other working people; all the wealth of society is dedicated to the promotion of their welfare. (Loud applause.) In our society the working masses are most valued and their personality and rights are most respected. Especially in this country the rising generation who represent the future of society are more treasured than anyone else; all attention is directed to bringing them up to be happy, free from the social evils inherent in exploiter society. (Prolonged loud applause.)

The fact that the working masses in socialist society are the masters of society and that their personality and rights are respected to the utmost is explained precisely by their being masters of State power and means of production. This is the basis of all the advantages and indestructible vitality of the socialist system. (Loud applause.)

Our socialist system is a genuinely democratic system that practically guarantees the political rights and liberties of the workers, peasants and the rest of the working people. (Thunderous applause.)

Regardless of their sex, occupation, property status, education and party affiliation, all our working people have the right to elect and to be elected and are guaranteed all rights to and freedom of social and political activities such as speech, press, assembly and demonstration. The workers, peasants and other working people, who were formerly held in bondage without any rights, now directly participate in the State administration and politics as masters of State power and conduct free social and political activities as members of political parties and social organizations. Our working people today enjoy a dignified and fruitful life with genuine political rights and liberties under the socialist system. (Loud applause.)

In contrast, in capitalist society where State power is in the hands of the small minority of exploiting classes, the working masses have no political rights or freedom at all. The working people do not even have the most elementary right and freedom to express their political views, to say nothing of the right to partake of State power; they only have the obligation to obey the exploiting classes. The so-called liberties and rights loudly advertised by capitalists are confined exclusively to the rulers and exploiting classes to oppress and exploit the masses of the people; the "democracy" they advocate is nothing but a camouflage to cover up the bourgeois dictatorship.

The superiority of our socialist system also lies in the fact that the State takes the full responsibility for the material and cultural well-being of the workers, peasants and other working people. (Thunderous applause.)

Providing an equally abundant life for the people and systematically improving their material and cultural standards is one of the intrinsic characteristics of the socialist system. In socialist society the State serves the interests of the people and is liable to guarantee material and cultural well-being for the working people, whereas the State in exploiter society serves as a tool of oppression and exploitation against the workers and peasants.

Today everyone at working age in this country is provided with a job by the State, according to his ability and aptitude, and gets distribution according to the quantity and quality of work done. The working people also benefit from labour protection, eight-hour workday, paid leave, and accommodation at holiday homes and sanatoria, which provide them with conditions for safe work and rest. In particular, the working mothers enjoy tremendous benefits from the State. Besides providing jobs for all who can work, our State assumes the responsibility even for the lives of those who cannot work because of old age, injuries on the job or ill health and of the supportless old people and children. Therefore, our country has no one who roams about hunting for a job or goes around begging; all our people, young and old, are leading a happy life under the care of the State and society. (Loud applause.)

All our working people are provided with adequate food, clothing and housing conditions by the State. (Loud applause.) Everyone in this land is given the right to be fed the moment he is born; all the children and students, from the children in nurseries and kindergartens to the students in colleges and universities, are supplied with clothes by the State. (Prolonged loud applause.) The State provides our workers and office employees with dwelling houses, and the peasants also live in modern houses built by the State.

Universal free medical care has also been introduced in this country, so that all the working people are free from worries of medical care. There are medical institutions and medical workers in all places, be it in town or country, where the people work and live. Through the section medical care system, an advanced system of medical service, the State looks after the health of the working people in a responsible way. Our mortality rate has now been reduced by half, and the average life span of the people increased by 26 years, compared with the pre-liberation years. (Loud applause.) Our people's age-old desire to get rid of all sorts of diseases has been realized only under our social system.

Everyone in this country is provided with sufficient conditions for education and development. All our students, from primary school children to university students, are now receiving free education, and the preschool children are happily growing up in nurseries and kindergartens at State and public expenses. (Loud applause.) In particular, with the introduction of universal compulsory ten-year senior middle school education which gives ten years of schooling, plus one year of compulsory preschool training, our younger generation are receiving eleven years of perfect secondary general education by the benefit of the State. Virtually this is an eleven-year compulsory education, which means the most advanced compulsory education in the world is given in this country. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

The socialist State offers opportunities of learning also for the adults who were deprived of the right to study before in exploiter society and left far behind social culture. All our working people are learning to the best of their abilities in accordance with their desire and aptitude in the working people's middle schools, factory higher technical schools, factory colleges and other educational institutions where they study while on the job. Indeed, our country is a "land of education," a "land of learning" where all the people study by the benefit of the State. (Thunderous applause.)

Although they do not live in luxury like the landlords and capitalists, all our people are now living an equally good life and studying as much as they wish, without any worry about jobs, food, clothing and housing. This clearly shows that our socialist system is a system truly for the entire people including the workers and peasants. (Thunderous applause.)

The socialist system is the best social system that not only provides the people with a happy life today but also promises them a brighter future. Since all the fruits of labour in socialist society are used for social progress and for greater welfare of the working people, increasing social wealth brings an ever greater abundance and an ever higher level of cultural life to the people.

However, in capitalist society the handful of exploiters grow richer with each passing day, whereas the working people who make up the absolute majority of the population become more and more impoverished and miserable. Capitalist society is a society where "the rich get ever richer and the poor get ever poorer," the gulf between the exploiting and the exploited classes growing daily wider; it is a living hell where the working masses are impoverished and starved.

All these facts make us have a great pride in our socialist system, a people's social system truly for the workers, peasants and working intellectuals. (Prolonged loud applause.)

In our country the economy, culture, science and technology are making rapid progress all the time. This is one of the great advantages of our socialist system. (Thunderous applause.)

Socialist society has every condition and possibility for the rapid and continuous development of the economy. In this society a planned and balanced economic development is guaranteed by the State through a planned mobilization and use of all the nation's manpower and material resources and through a coordinated control and guidance of production, distribution, accumulation and consumption. Also in this society the working people display a high degree of revolutionary enthusiasm and creative initiative in their productive activities, since they work for their society and collective and for their own welfare as masters of the country.

As the functions of the State as economic organizer increase and the ideological consciousness of the working people grows in our country, the economy develops steadily at a high rate. Our industrial production grew at a high rate, an annual average of 19.1 per cent, throughout the period of industrialization from 1957 to 1970, and the difficult and complex task of socialist industrialization was creditably accomplished in a very short time, in only 14 years. (Thunderous applause.)

In socialist society literature and art effloresce brilliantly. The socialist system has placed not only State power and the means of production but also literature and art in the hands of the people, and thus opened up a highway for the development of literature and art and made them true literature and art which serve the working masses.

Today the broad sections of our working people take an active part in literary and artistic activities and enjoy them to their heart's content. Because of their popular and revolutionary character our literature and art are in full bloom, enjoying the boundless love of the people. (Thunderous applause.)

It is one of the essential advantages of the socialist system that the politico-ideological unity of the masses of the people is strengthened and the relationship of comradely cooperation between the working people develops day by day. (Thunderous applause.)

The elimination of the exploiting classes and all sorts of exploiting systems has fundamentally changed the positions and social status of the workers, peasants and working intellectuals. The establishment of the socialist system has made all our people socialist working people and wrought a radical change in their ideological and moral qualities. Because of their common socio-economic status and their common goals and interests, our working class, cooperative farmers and working intellectuals are firmly united politically and ideologically and closely cooperate with each other as comrades. (Loud applause.)

In capitalist society which is built on rabid selfishness and where the jungle law functions, fraud and swindle are rampant and people are antagonistic and hostile to each other, and it is a common practice for them to sacrifice others for their own fame and career, comfort and pleasure. In our society, however, all its members are imbued with true comradeship, respecting, trusting and cooperating with each other on the principle of collectivism. Our working people are fully displaying the fine communist spirit of moving ahead together, the informed teaching the less-informed and the advanced leading the laggards forward.

Today our society has been turned into a great, harmonious Red family where the entire people are closely united as a political force; in this great family all are working and living full of revolutionary ardour and optimism. (Loud applause.) The entire people are united politically and ideologically and working with revolutionary zeal. This is precisely the firm basis of our society and the source of our indestructible strength. (Thunderous applause.)

Our socialist system is displaying its superiority and unbreakable vitality more fully with each passing day.

Through their own experience our people are convinced that only the socialist system can guarantee genuine liberties and rights to the working masses and provide them with the most bountiful and happy life; they regard it as the greatest honour and pleasure to live and make revolution under this system. (Prolonged thunderous applause.) The people in the northern half of the Republic will not yield to anyone our socialist system which they themselves have chosen and whose superiority and great vitality have been unequivocally proved, and they are all aglow with a determination to fight on staunchly to consolidate and develop this system. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

3. The Main Content of the Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea

Comrades,

The current session of the Supreme People's Assembly is going to adopt the Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea with a view to consolidating the socialist system established in the northern half of the Republic and intensifying the struggle for the complete victory of socialism.

The new Socialist Constitution correctly reflects the achievements made in the socialist revolution and building of socialism in our country, defines the principles to govern the activities in the political, economic and cultural fields in socialist society and the basic rights and duties of the citizens, and stipulates the composition and functions of the State organs and the principles of their activities. It is to protect by law the socialist system and the dictatorship of the proletariat established in the northern half of the Republic and to serve the revolutionary cause of the working class.

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea legislatively fixes the political victories and successes attained by our people in the revolutionary struggle in the past years and defines the character and functions of our State and the principles of its activity to meet the demand of our revolutionary development.

It proclaims the Democratic People's Republic of Korea an independent socialist State. (Thunderous applause.) In our country the socialist system has been established, the political and ideological unity of the entire people resting on the worker-peasant alliance led by the working class strengthened with this system as its basis and the historic task of socialist industrialization creditably accomplished. (Loud applause.) As a result, the Government of the Republic has been strengthened and developed into a socialist power on a new socialist basis and a firm political foundation.

The sovereignty of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea belongs to the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals. The Supreme People's Assembly and local People's Assemblies at all levels are composed of deputies representing the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals, and they manage and operate the State organs. Our State is a genuine State of the workers and peasants in which the working masses are the masters of the country and the entire people exercise power. (Thunderous applause.) Therefore, our State regards it as its supreme duty to protect the interests of the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals freed from exploitation and oppression for ever. (Loud applause.)

The Government of our Republic which has inherited the glorious revolutionary traditions of our people is guided in its activity by the Juche idea which is a creative application of Marxism-Leninism to our country's reality, and strives to execute the lines and policies of the Workers' Party of Korea. (Loud applause.)

It is the fundamental revolutionary task of the Government of the Republic to attain the complete victory of socialism in the northern half, expel foreign forces on a nation-wide scale and achieve the reunification and independence of the country on a democratic basis. For the successful implementation of this task we must, first of all, strengthen the functions and role of our Government to intensify the struggle against the hostile elements at home and abroad opposed to our socialist system and powerfully accelerate the ideological revolution to revolutionize and working-classize all the members of society.

The Socialist Constitution clarifies that in its activity the Government of our Republic must always carry through the class and mass lines, give priority to political work, work with people, in all matters as required by the Chongsan-ri spirit and Chongsan-ri method to rouse the conscious enthusiasm of the masses, and persistently keep up the Chollima Movement, our Party's general line in socialist construction, thus powerfully pushing ahead with both the communist education and remoulding of the working people and economic construction. (Thunderous applause.)

It also clearly stipulates the duties of the armed forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the national defence policy based on the principle of self-defence as well as the foreign policy of the Republic based on the principles of complete equality and independence, Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism.

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea fixes legally the achievements attained by our people in the building of an independent national economy and clarifies the principles governing our socio-economic life.

The socialist ownership of the means of production is the economic foundation of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. All the economic activities of our State and the socio-economic life of the working people are thoroughly based on the principles of socialism, and the nation's economy is steadily developing at a very high rate, on the basis of the socialist relations of production which have established an undivided sway in town and country. The economic power of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is firmly guaranteed by the great superiority of socialist production relations and the solid foundations of an independent national economy. (Loud applause.)

Labour is one of the most important matters which form the basis of socio-economic life in socialist society. The Socialist Constitution gives a clear definition of the character of labour, the principles governing the working life of the toiling people and the socialist principle of distribution in our society.

Socialism and communism can be built only by the creative labour of working millions. It is a solemn duty and the greatest honour of the working people in socialist society to love labour and conscientiously participate in the communal labour for the building of socialism and communism. All our working people take part in labour, and work for the sake of their country and people and for their own welfare, displaying conscious enthusiasm and creativity.

The fruits of labour in this country are allotted entirely for the prosperity and progress of the country and the promotion of the well-being of the working people. It is an immutable socialist principle that all the working people work according to their ability and take their share according to the quantity and quality of work done. Our State regards the steady improvement of the people's material and cultural life as its primary duty, as the supreme principle of its activity. (Thunderous applause.)

The Socialist Constitution stipulates the socialist form of economic management and the principle of State guidance of the economy in our country.

The Tae'an work system, under which the economy is managed in a scientific and rational way on the basis of the collective strength of the producer masses, and the new system of agricultural guidance, under which agriculture is directed by industrial methods, are the best socialist forms of economic management, whose superiority has been clearly proved in practice. (Loud applause.) In addition, the unified and the detailed planning constitute the socialist system and method of planning, which make it possible to tighten the discipline of democratic centralism in economic management and ensure a high rate of growth in production and the balanced development of the national economy. The decisive guarantee for the successful building of the socialist economy is to give full scope to the superiority of the socialist economic management systems created by our Party and guide and manage the economy to meet the requirements of these systems. (Loud applause.)

The Socialist Constitution also sets forth the economic tasks of laying the firmer material and technological foundations of socialism, emancipating the working people once and for all from heavy labour, gradually turning cooperative property into all-people property and eliminating the differences between town and country and the class distinction between the workers and the peasants.

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on the basis of the shining achievements made by our people in the construction of culture, makes clear the orientation in thoroughly carrying out the cultural revolution and accelerating the building of a socialist national culture, as well as the principles that must be observed by the State in this sphere.

The basic aim of the cultural revolution in socialist society is to train all the working people to be competent builders of socialism and communism with a profound knowledge of nature and society and a high level of technology, and make our culture a true people's revolutionary culture which serves the socialist working people. To attain this aim of the cultural revolution, we must resolutely combat the cultural infiltration by imperialism and the tendency towards restorationism and rapidly develop education, science, literature and art and all other domains of socialist cultural construction on a sound basis.

The Socialist Constitution specifically explains the State's educational policy of thoroughly carrying out the principles of socialist pedagogy in education and closely combining general education with technical education, and education with productive labour, as well as important people's education plans such as the introduction of compulsory ten-year senior middle school education for all our young people under working age. The Constitution also elucidates our State's revolutionary policies to develop science, literature and art, physical culture and sports and public health service.

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea explicitly provides for the basic rights and duties of citizens to suit the intrinsic nature of socialist society. In this country where there is no exploitation and oppression and where the social and individual interests are in full accord, the citizens' rights and duties are based on the collectivist principle of "One for all and all for one." The basic rights of citizens laid down in the Socialist Constitution are a legal confirmation of the democratic rights and liberties enjoyed by our people in their actual social life. The duties of citizens stipulated in the Constitution are honourable duties that should be fulfilled by the people, as the masters of the country, in consolidating and developing the socialist system and in making their homeland richer and stronger. (Loud applause.)

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea contains new provisions concerning the composition and functions of the State organs, and the principles of their activity to suit the actual conditions of the revolutionary development.

The new State structure instituted under the Socialist Constitution will allow the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals to take a more active part in State affairs and State administration and enable the State organs to serve the people's interests better and push ahead more vigorously with the revolutionary struggle and work of construction by improving their functions and role.

Our power organs are composed of representatives of the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals; they protect the interests of the working people and fight for the people's freedom and welfare. The new State structure is built in such a way that the activities of administrative bodies are always supervised and controlled by the masses of the people. Under the new State structure, unlike the old one, the People's Committees are separated from administrative bodies, and the former which are composed of representatives of the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals are to perform the function of exercising day-to-day supervision and control over the latter's activities, so that the functionaries of the administrative bodies are able to do away with bureaucracy in their work and serve the people better as their servants.

The Socialist Constitution defines the principle of democratic centralism as the basic principle of organization and activity for all the State organs. Democratic centralism in their organization and activity makes it possible to carry out Party lines and policies in a coordinated way throughout the country and dynamically organize and mobilize the entire people to the struggle to build socialism and communism. Since they are based on democratic centralism, the organs of people's power are able to perform their functions and role satisfactorily as a powerful weapon for the building of socialism and communism. (Loud applause.)

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is a most popular Constitution for the benefit of the workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals. The new Constitution fully reflects their will and desire and thoroughly defends the working people's interests. Also, the new Constitution gives the entire people genuine freedoms and rights in all spheres of social life and legally guarantees all conditions to make them real.

The Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is a most revolutionary one. Unlike those Constitutions which refer mainly to the State structure, our Socialist Constitution, which lays down all the principles governing the political, economic and cultural activities in socialist society, will serve as a sharp weapon of the proletarian dictatorship to protect the policy of our Party and the Government of the Republic and firmly safeguard the gains of socialist revolution, as a powerful means for giving a strong impetus to the socialist economic construction and for revolutionizing and working-classing the whole society by intensifying the ideological and cultural revolutions and establishing the socialist mode of life. (Loud applause.)

With the institution of the Socialist Constitution, the Government of the Republic will have a new weapon of the proletarian dictatorship and our people will be provided with a sure legal guarantee in the struggle to achieve the complete victory of socialism and the independent, peaceful reunification of the country. (Loud applause.) The enforcement of the Socialist Constitution in the northern half of the Republic will greatly encourage the people in south Korea who are fighting for the democratization of society and the country's independent, peaceful reunification. (Loud applause.)

With the enforcement of the Socialist Constitution a new change will take place in the political, economic and cultural life of our people and they will advance with redoubled vigour along the path of socialism and communism, deeply convinced of the justness of their cause. (Thunderous applause.)

4. Our Tasks in the Consolidation and Development of the Socialist System

Comrades,

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and our people are confronted today with the historic task of consolidating and developing the socialist system and attaining the complete victory of socialism by promoting the revolutionary struggle and construction work continuously and vigorously on the basis of the brilliant achievements gained in building a new society.

In order to achieve the complete victory of socialism we must obliterate the distinctions between towns and the countryside and the class distinction between the workers and the peasants, reinforce the material and technical foundations of socialism, markedly improve the material and cultural standards of the people and smash the insidious manoeuvres of the hostile classes and do away with the corrosive influence of old ideas once and for all.

The struggle for the complete victory of socialism is a struggle for the final liquidation of the vestiges of the old society from all spheres of social life; it is a struggle to transform society on the pattern of the working class in all realms of economy and culture, ideology and morality. To attain the complete victory of socialism, therefore, the Party and State of the working class must push ahead energetically with the struggle to occupy the two fortresses, material and ideological, on the way of building communism. We must continue to dynamically promote the technical, cultural and ideological revolutions to consolidate the socialist system and achieve the complete victory of socialism.

The basic goal of the technical revolution at the present stage is to successfully carry out its three major tasks advanced at the Fifth Congress of the Workers' Party of Korea.

These three tasks which aim to considerably narrow down the disparity between heavy and light labour and between agricultural and industrial labour and free the women from the heavy burden of household chores, are an honourable undertaking to guarantee the complete victory of socialism; they are a strategic task facing us in socialist construction after socialist industrialization. (Thunderous applause.) To fulfil these three major tasks is the basic way to release the working people from arduous labour, provide them more fully with equal conditions of working life and step up the technological reconstruction of the national economy and the development of the productive forces. Furthermore, only when these tasks are carried out, will it be possible to satisfactorily solve the question of elevating the technical and cultural standards of the working people, remoulding their ideological consciousness and eliminating the difference between towns and the countryside and the class distinction between the workers and the peasants.

Regarding the three major tasks of the technical revolution set forth by the Party as the central task in socialist economic construction at present, the Government of the Republic will strive for their successful implementation. (Applause.)

In order to diminish the distinction between heavy and light labour and eliminate work in excessive heat or under other harmful conditions, we must raise the general level of mechanization and semi- and full-scale automation where arduous labour and heat-affected and other harmful labour exist. We must also introduce the comprehensive mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture in an all-round way to reduce the difference between agricultural and industrial labour. At the same time, in order to free our women from the heavy burden of household drudgery we must provide them with adequate conditions to do kitchen and other household work quickly and easily. In order to hit these three major targets a vigorous mass movement for technological innovation must be unfolded in all fields of the national economy, bringing about a fresh upsurge in production.

We must first direct great efforts to the development of the engineering industry and bring about renovation in this branch.

The technical revolution is precisely the mechanical revolution. Machinery is the decisive means for alleviating the arduous labour of people, and the productive forces are also developed by the improvement of machinery. The successful carrying out of the three major tasks of the technical revolution depends, in the final analysis, on whether or not diverse types of modern machinery and equipment are satisfactorily produced through the rapid development of the engineering industry.

For the advancement of the engineering industry priority must be given to rapidly and steadily increasing the production of machine tools. True to the Party's call, the heroic workers in this industry have recently brought about innovation in the production of machine tools and admirably attained the goal of 30,000-piece production per annum, thus opening up bright prospects for the victorious implementation of the three major tasks of the technical revolution. (Loud applause.) Workers in the engineering industry, not resting content with this victory, must strive to continuously increase the output of machine tools while consolidating the success achieved and, in particular, work hard to increase the variety and raise the quality. (Loud applause.)

A rapid increase in the production of tractors and trucks is urgently needed for the fulfilment of the three major tasks of the technical revolution and one of the most important tasks confronting the engineering industry. To successfully carry out the comprehensive mechanization of agriculture, our Party presented a policy of providing 6-7 tractors and one truck for every 100 chongbo of fields in the near future. For the thorough implementation of this policy, the tractor- and truck-producing centres must be expanded and reinforced and a fresh innovation be effected in their production. Thus, we should attain the annual production level of 30,000 tractors and 15,000-30,000 trucks in a year or two. (Prolonged loud applause.)

An important task now facing the engineering industry is to increase the production of heavy machines and sets of plants. We must expand and consolidate the heavy-machine production centres to manufacture greater quantities of diversified drilling machines, large bulldozers and excavators and different other types of heavy machines needed for the extractive industries and big projects to remake nature as well as large vessels, and an innovation must be brought about in the production of sets of plants.

In order to introduce semi- and full-scale automation extensively in all domains of the national economy we must rapidly develop the electronics and automation industries. Different kinds of automation elements, gauges and instruments must be produced in plenty by making the best use of the already-laid foundation of electronics and automation industries and, at the same time, many small and medium branch factories be built up to produce automation elements and automation gauges and instruments.

In order to develop the engineering industry at a fast tempo and fully guarantee huge construction work we must markedly increase the production of different kinds of iron and steel materials and nonferrous metals by concentrating our efforts on the advancement of the metal industry. Projects now under way to reconstruct and enlarge the Kim Chaek Iron Works, the Kangson Steel Plant and other metallurgical plants along up-to-date lines must be completed quickly to bring about a radical growth of production and, at the same time, a vigorous struggle must be launched to create a big, modern metallurgical base. Along with this, the production of various nonferrous metals must be drastically augmented through the consolidation of their production centres and the maximum use of the production capacities of the smelteries.

To give priority to the extractive and power industries is an important guarantee for the successful fulfilment of the three major tasks of the technical revolution and for swift progress in all realms of the national economy. In the extractive industries, geological prospecting must always be given priority and the level of mechanization and automation at coal and ore mines be elevated decisively through a dynamic technical innovation movement and thereby a fresh innovation must be made in production. (Applause.) In the power industry, power production should be raised to the maximum by taking good care of the equipment of the existing power stations and, simultaneously, new construction projects must be sped up vigorously to hasten their commissioning.

An important task of the chemical industry is to further expand and consolidate the raw material bases for light industry and steadily augment the production of chemical fertilizers and agricultural chemicals needed for the technical revolution in the countryside. The workers in the chemical industry have already registered great achievements in the struggle to fulfil the Six-Year Plan. Especially, the production of vinalon and vinyl chloride this year has already exceeded the level envisaged for the end of the Six-Year Plan. (Loud applause.) In the chemical industry we must work from now on to make better use of the existing production capacities and, at the same time, strive to create up-to-date chemical industrial centres. We must also normalize the production of ammonia through gasification and markedly raise the proportion of phosphatic and microelement fertilizers in the production of chemical fertilizers. In addition, we have to build up the paper-making centres to supply enough paper needed in both the universal compulsory ten-year senior middle school education and the cultural revolution.

We are to carry out enormous construction works for the successful implementation of the three major tasks of the technical revolution and fresh progress in the national economy. In capital construction we have to concentrate our efforts on major projects which are of decisive significance in the national economic development and the improvement of the people's living conditions, in accordance with our Party's policy of concentrated construction and thus hasten their commissioning to the maximum.

We must exert great efforts to develop the building-materials and lumber industries, so that the demands for different building materials are fully met.

The rapid development of light industry is highly important in radically improving the people's living standards and freeing women from the heavy burden of house chores. The Government of the Republic must direct great effort to the growth of the textile and garment industries and, in particular, strive to modernize the daily-necessities and food-processing industries. In order to streamline the latter, the engineering industry must produce large quantities of varied single-purpose machines. We must modernize the daily-necessities and food-processing industries as early as possible through a mass campaign to let one machine make another and let one factory build another, and thus effect a great change in the production of consumer goods and food. (Applause.)

The cardinal task in narrowing down the distinctions between agricultural and industrial labour and freeing the peasants from arduous work is to effect an overall, comprehensive mechanization of agriculture. In agriculture, we have to radically raise its level of mechanization and, in particular, concentrate our efforts on the introduction of mechanization in in-between areas, in keeping with the rapid growth of the output of tractors and trucks. We must successfully carry out the comprehensive mechanization of agriculture; this can be done by reinforcing tractor repair bases and tractor implement production centres and by making maximum use of tractors through the extensive levelling of fields and readjustment of their boundaries. In addition, we must step up the chemicalization of agriculture and widely introduce the advanced methods of farming and thus bring about a fresh upswing in agricultural production. (Applause.)

Transport plays a very important part in carrying out the three major tasks of the technical revolution. In this branch we must continually accelerate the railway electrification and vigorously push forward the construction of new railways and harbours, so that the material and technical basis of transport is further strengthened. We must also improve the organization of transport and actively mechanize the loading and discharging operations. In this way, we will fully cope with the increasing freight turnover.

The Government of the Republic must vigorously continue to push ahead with the cultural revolution along with the technical revolution.

The urgent task facing us today in the construction of culture is to train large numbers of technical personnel to meet the demand of the reality of socialist construction, and considerably raise the working people's general cultural and technical levels.

We must improve the work of colleges and higher specialized schools, build more institutions of higher learning and strengthen the work of night schools and correspondence courses. By doing this we must carry out without fail the decision of our Party's Fifth Congress on increasing the number of technicians and specialists to more than a million in the coming few years. (Loud applause.)

If we are to raise the working people's cultural and technical levels we must realize universal compulsory ten-year senior middle school education on a high qualitative level. In order to fully guarantee this education the Government of the Republic must provide all the necessary material conditions and decisively improve teachers' training to produce excellent teachers in great numbers. In the field of education, we must thoroughly apply the principles of socialist pedagogy so as to train all our students to be dependable builders of socialism and communism, firmly armed with our Party's revolutionary ideology and equipped with ample knowledge, high morality and strong bodies. (Loud applause.)

In order to raise the general cultural and technical levels of the working people we must further develop the spare-time education system comprising the working people's middle school, factory higher-technical school and other schools, thus enrolling all working people in some educational establishments, so they can study on a regular basis.

In this way, we will ensure that all working people attain the level of the senior middle-school graduate and master more than one technical skill. (Loud applause.)

The Government of the Republic must continue to vigorously push forward the ideological revolution and realize the revolutionization and working-classization of the whole society in accordance with the Party's consistent policy.

What is most important in revolutionizing and working-classing the entire society is to equip the working people firmly with our Party's monolithic idea, the Juche idea. Our Party's Juche idea is the only correct guide to the successful carrying out of the Korean revolution. (Thunderous applause.) Only when the working people are firmly armed with this idea can they have a genuine revolutionary world outlook and admirably discharge the tasks assigned to them in the revolutionary struggle and construction work. We should intensify the education of the working people in our Party policies and the revolutionary traditions to arm them closely with our Party's monolithic idea, the Juche idea, thereby training all of them to be true Red fighters of the Party, communist revolutionaries, who adhere to revolutionary principles under any adversity and carry through the Party's lines and policies. (Thunderous applause.)

We should intensify communist education, with class education as its main content, among the working people, while arming them with the Juche idea, so that all of them are firmly armed with the working-class consciousness and collectivism, ardently cherish our socialist system and devotedly work for its consolidation and development.

Steady improvement of the material and cultural standards of the people is the supreme principle governing all activities of the Government of the Republic. As in the past, the Government of the Republic will continue to make every effort to raise the people's material and cultural standards.

We must firmly adhere to the principle of ensuring a proportionate improvement of all the working people's living conditions while systematically promoting the people's welfare. The Government of the Republic should make active efforts especially to rapidly eliminate distinctions between the workers and the peasants in their living standards and between the urban and the rural population in their living conditions, while improving the lives of the people as a whole, in accordance with the policy set forth at the Fifth Congress of our Party. (Prolonged loud applause.)

We must strengthen the organs of power and improve their functions and role in order to successfully implement the revolutionary tasks confronting us at present and consolidate and develop the socialist system.

To strengthen the government of the workers and peasants, a powerful weapon of the revolution and construction, is an important guarantee for winning the complete victory of socialism and accomplishing the historical cause of the working class. We must make untiring efforts to fortify the organs of power at all levels and raise their functions and role in the revolution and construction.

The organs of power from top to bottom must radically increase their role as defenders of political rights and interests of the workers, peasants and other working people and as householders responsible for their lives. (Loud applause.) They must strive to champion the working people's political rights in every way, protect their lives and property and make the people all live well. The organs of power at all levels must take in hand commerce, town administration, education, public health service and production and construction which are directly related to the people's life, and strengthen their leadership over them to provide better living conditions for the people. They should protect well and take good care of State and public property and resolutely fight against its misappropriation and wastage.

For our Government to be a genuine government of the workers and peasants which faithfully serves the interests of the revolution and the people, we must see to it that the monolithic ideological system of the Party is thoroughly established, above all, among the officials of the government bodies. The government officials at all levels must arm themselves more firmly with our Party's monolithic ideology, always base all their activities strictly on the Party's lines and policies, and defend and carry them through to the end under whatever difficult conditions. (Thunderous applause.) At the same time, they must constantly improve their method and style of work. Bureaucratism is one of the major defects that may often manifest itself in the method and style of work after the seizure of power by the working class. The government officials' bureaucratism stems from subjectivism as well as from the wrong viewpoint of identifying their posts with old-time government offices. It divorces the Party from the masses and makes it impossible to successfully carry out the revolutionary tasks. We must completely do away with the bureaucratic work method of the functionaries of government bodies and strictly adhere to the Chongsan-ri method, our Party's revolutionary method of work.

The Government of the Republic must continue to exert great efforts to increase the nation's defence capabilities.

Since we are building socialism in direct confrontation with U.S. imperialism, the ringleader of world imperialism, we must not neglect the work of increasing the nation's defence capabilities even for a moment. The Government of the Republic must always be highly vigilant against the war policy and aggressive manoeuvres of the imperialists and augment in every way the nation's defence capabilities in accordance with the revolutionary principle of self-defence. We must continue to thoroughly implement the Party's military line, the main content of which is to turn the entire army into an army of cadres, modernize it from top to bottom, arm all the people and fortify the whole country, and make the nation's defences impregnable so as to promptly crush any aggressive acts of the imperialists and firmly defend the security of the country and the people and our socialist gains. (Thunderous applause.)

In order to consolidate and develop the socialist system and hasten the final victory of our revolution, we must strengthen solidarity with the revolutionary forces of the world while increasing our own revolutionary forces.

The principle invariably followed by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea in its foreign policy is to develop friendship and cooperation with all countries that are friendly towards our country, on the principles of equality and mutual benefit.

In the future, too, we will hold fast to this principle in our foreign policy. (Thunderous applause.)

The Government of the Republic will do its best to achieve unity and cohesion of the socialist countries and promote friendship and cooperation with them on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. (Loud applause.)

It will strive to expand and strengthen its diplomatic relations with the Asian, African and Latin American countries that are fighting for freedom and national independence and to establish and promote friendly relations with more countries. (Loud applause.) We will also endeavour to establish diplomatic as well as political, economic and cultural relations, on the five principles of peaceful co-existence, with those capitalist countries that are desirous of having good relations with our country and pursue unbiased policies free of aggressive nature towards the north and south of the Korean peninsula. (Loud applause.)

The consistent policy followed by the Government of the Republic in its external activity is to fight against the U.S.-led imperialists' policy of aggression and war and for world peace and security.

The U.S.-led imperialists are still pursuing their policy of aggression and war in a crafty manner under ostentatious signboards of "peace" and "negotiations." Holding aloft the revolutionary banner of anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle, we will fight on resolutely to check and frustrate the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and defend the peace of the world. (Loud applause.) Furthermore, we will render active support and encouragement to the struggle of all peoples of the world against imperialism and make energetic efforts to strengthen solidarity with all the anti-imperialist forces. (Loud applause.)

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Korean people will always firmly stand on the side of the peoples who are fighting for peace and democracy, national independence and socialism. (Thunderous applause.)

In the past period the Korean citizens in Japan have achieved tremendous successes in their struggle to defend their democratic, national rights, facilitate the independent peaceful reunification of the homeland and strengthen the international solidarity with the Japanese people and other progressive peoples of the world.

In the future, too, they should continue to struggle resolutely to develop national education and achieve the freedom of return home and visit to their country, united closely around the Chongryon (the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan), under the banner of the Juche idea. (Loud applause.) They should also actively contribute to hastening the country's reunification, the supreme national task of our people, upholding our Party's policy of independent peaceful reunification, and strengthen the internationalist friendship with the Japanese people and other peoples of the world. (Loud applause.)

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea regards it as its solemn duty to protect our nationals in Japan and the rest of Korean citizens abroad. The Government of the Republic will also fight staunchly against all the unwarranted acts of infringement upon the interests and national rights of our overseas citizens, and do all it can to support and encourage their just struggle. (Thunderous applause.)

Comrade Deputies,

Our people have achieved great victories and successes in the struggle for the socialist revolution and socialist construction under the wise leadership of the Workers' Party of Korea, courageously overcoming manifold difficulties and harsh trials. All these brilliant victories and achievements testify to the correctness and indestructible vitality of our Party's Juche idea and demonstrate our people's inexhaustible might. (Thunderous applause.)

Our people are confronted today with the important task of achieving the complete victory of socialism in the northern half of the Republic and the independent peaceful reunification of the country by promoting the revolution and construction. In order to carry out this task, we must continue our vigorous struggle with unusual energy and devotion and dash forward more quickly, overcoming all difficulties. (Loud applause.)

We must thoroughly embody the new Socialist Constitution, which we are going to adopt here, in all fields of the State and social life, and more powerfully push forward the revolution and construction. All our citizens must voluntarily observe the Socialist Constitution and thus bring about a great change in the revolutionary struggle and work of construction. (Thunderous applause.)

Our revolutionary cause is a just one, and victory is definitely ours. (Prolonged thunderous applause.)

No force can block the way of the Korean people who are marching forward under our Party's leadership, with the State power firmly in their hands. (Thunderous applause.)

Let us all unite closely around the Party Central Committee and the Government of the Republic and advance valiantly towards the bright future of socialism and communism, under the unfurled banner of Marxism-Leninism, the revolutionary banner of the Juche idea.

(All rise. Shouts of "Long live the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung!" Rousing cheers and prolonged thunderous applause shaking the hall.)

NEW YEAR ADDRESS

KIM IL SUNG

Comrades,

We have seen out the year 1972 which will go down as another brilliant year in our nation's history, and are seeing in a hopeful New Year, 1973.

Allow me to offer warm New Year felicitations and greetings to all the Korean people on behalf of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Government of the Republic.

Last year, under the leadership of the Workers' Party of Korea, our people waged a dynamic struggle to carry through the decision of the Fifth Party Congress and achieved shining victories in all the political, economic, cultural and military spheres.

Last year we conducted the victorious elections of deputies to the Supreme People's Assembly and other organs of power at different levels amid the unprecedentedly great political enthusiasm of the entire people. Through the elections our people expressed their unreserved support for and profound trust in the Workers' Party of Korea and the Government of the Republic and demonstrated the steel-like unity and solidarity of the whole society firmly bound together with one idea and purpose based on our Party's Juche idea.

At the historic First Session of the Fifth Supreme People's Assembly held a few days ago we adopted the Socialist Constitution of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and reorganized the structure of our State bodies in conformity with the reality of our revolutionary development and formed a new Government of the Republic. With the adoption of the Socialist Constitution, we consolidated our great victories achieved in the socialist revolution and construction and strengthened the revolutionary power of the workers and peasants still more, and came to have a new mighty weapon in the struggle for the complete victory of socialism and the independent, peaceful reunification of the country.

On this New Year day, I extend warm greetings to all the comrades who attended the historic First Session of the Fifth Supreme People's Assembly, including the deputies to the Supreme People's Assembly who, with the unanimous support of the entire electors, have been elected as representatives of the people.

In 1972 we attained great successes in the building of socialist economy and culture as well.

Last year the working class and all other segments of the working people had an intense struggle for the successful fulfilment of the three major tasks of the technical revolution, and performed splendid feats of labour in all fields of the national economy. Many branches of the national economy registered the admirable result of surpassing the production level envisaged for the end of the Six-Year Plan, and a large number of factories and enterprises overfulfilled the three years' targets of the Six-Year Plan.

Last year in the domain of education a start was made in the full-scale introduction of ten-year compulsory senior middle school education, and the firm foundation for the creation of a million-strong army of intellectuals was laid through a sharp increase of factory colleges and various other institutions of higher learning.

Last year our scientists commemorated the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Academy of Sciences with the glittering successes they achieved in scientific researches. The Party Central Committee has a high opinion of the scientists, who have waged an energetic struggle in accordance with the Party's policy of developing our sciences along Juche-motivated lines and thus scored good results in their researches which are of great importance in socialist economic construction and the country's scientific and technological progress.

Last year our cinema workers and other Red writers and artists produced many revolutionary militant works of literature and art. Thus, they demonstrated to the whole world the vitality of our socialist literature and art which is efflorescing and developing resplendently under the leadership of the Party, and made a great contribution to the revolutionization and working-classization of our working people. The Party Central Committee is satisfied with the brilliant achievements made by our writers and artists.

The men and officers of the People's Army and the People's Security Forces stood firm at their outposts to defend stoutly the security of the country and the people, and the Worker-Peasant Red Guardsmen and the Red Young Guardsmen also creditably carried out their revolutionary tasks. Through the celebrations of the 40th anniversary of the Korean People's Revolutionary Army last year, we demonstrated to the whole world the indestructible might of our revolutionary armed forces with the People's Army at its core.

A great stride was also made in the struggle for the independent, peaceful reunification of the country last year. Thanks to the persistent efforts of our Party and the Government of the Republic, a historic north-south joint statement was made public last July, the keynote being the three principles—independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity. In accordance with the agreements in this statement the North-South Coordination Commission has been set up. Since the announcement of the joint statement the north-south Red Cross talks have made good progress. As a result, new bright prospects have been opened up before our people in their struggle for the independent, peaceful reunification of the country. This is a great victory of our Party's policy of independent, peaceful reunification which is based on the Juche idea, and is striking proof of its correctness and unfailing vitality.

All these brilliant successes we achieved in the revolution and construction last year are a fruit of the heroic struggle the working class and all other sections of the people, closely united around the Party Central Committee, waged with a high degree of revolutionary enthusiasm and creative activity.

Greeting the New Year, I extend warm thanks and hearty congratulations to our heroic working class, cooperative farmers, working intellectuals, men and officers of the People's Army and the People's Security Forces, the Public Security personnel, Worker-Peasant Red Guardsmen and Red Young Guardsmen who, upholding the Party's lines and policies, carried out their revolutionary tasks with honours.

I also extend my New Year greetings to all the people in south Korea who fought valiantly for the democratization of south Korean society and the independent, peaceful reunification of the country last year.

Last year the Korean nationals in Japan under the guidance of the Chongryon (General Association of Korean Residents in Japan) waged an energetic struggle to defend their democratic, national rights and accelerate the independent, peaceful reunification of the country. On the New Year day, I extend warm congratulations and greetings to all the officials of the Chongryon and the 600,000 Korean nationals in Japan and to all other Koreans abroad.

Thanks to the vigorous activities of our Party and the Government of the Republic in their external relations, the international solidarity with our revolution was further strengthened last year. Greeting the New Year 1973, I, on behalf of the entire Korean people, extend warm congratulations and greetings to the peoples of the socialist and many other countries of the world who give support and encouragement to our people in their struggle for socialist construction and the independent, peaceful reunification of the country.

Comrades,

The year of 1973 lies halfway in the carrying out of the Six-Year Plan. This year all the Party members and working people should effect another great revolutionary upsurge in all domains of the national economy in accordance with the programmatic tasks set forth at the First Session of the Fifth Supreme People's Assembly, and thus achieve a decisive victory in the struggle to fulfil the Six-Year Plan.

This year we will actively work to develop all domains of the national economy quickly as envisaged in the State plan and, in particular, make great efforts to advance the extractive industries, the first process of production.

In the extractive industries we must actively introduce mechanization and comprehensive mechanization in pit work in the existing coal and ore mines to increase production. On the other hand, we must secure enough reserves of deposits and extensively develop new coal and ore mines. To do so, we must step up geological survey.

The engineering industry and many other branches of the national economy should produce sufficient heavy machines and various equipment and materials for the mechanization of coal and ore mines and the development of new ones.

This year in the work of construction, we must fulfil a huge task of building large, modern metallurgical centres and large, aggregate chemical industrial centres which are of great significance in increasing the independence of our industry and improving the people's living standards. In capital construction, by carrying through the Party's policy of concentrated construction, we must concentrate our efforts on the early completion of the steel and rolling shops at the Kim Chaek Iron Works and of the Sungri Chemical Plant which are now under construction, as well as on the creation of a giant chemical plant in the western region. At the same time, we must energetically step up the construction of the Sodusu Power Station and Pukchang Thermal Power Station for their early completion.

One of our central tasks this year is to increase the quantity and variety of consumer goods and radically improve their quality. In light industry this year we must work hard for the modernization of the textile, garment, footwear, daily-necessities and food industries, and thereby produce larger quantities of high-quality consumer goods for the people and surpass the production level envisaged for the end of the Six-Year Plan.

As regards transport we must reinforce its material and technological foundations and improve its organization to fully meet the growing demand for transport. Especially in railway transport energetic efforts must be made to establish a revolutionary discipline and order and expand transport and traffic capacities.

In agriculture we must actively step up its comprehensive mechanization and chemicalization to increase agricultural production sharply. The experience of last year clearly proves that the Party's policy of rapidly developing agriculture in the in-between areas is entirely correct. This year we must supply them with more tractors, trucks and other modern farm machines, and more chemical fertilizers and other agricultural chemicals, so as to effect an innovation in farming in these areas. In agriculture we must improve the management and operation of cooperative farms as demanded by the new system of agricultural guidance and, particularly, organize labour properly and concentrate it on agricultural production without dispersing it.

The extensive application of the latest achievements of science and technology in production is an important task to introduce mechanization and semi- and full-scale automation in the different branches of the national economy and thereby augment production speedily and deliver our working people from arduous labour. Scientists and technicians must strive to raise all our sciences and techniques to the world level, and at the same time, boldly apply the results of scientific researches to production.

In order to effect a fresh upswing in socialist construction and successfully carry out our tasks this year, we must elevate the role of State bodies.

All the State bodies must quickly change their work system and satisfactorily perform their functions, as stipulated in the Socialist Constitution.

This time we have taken a new step to merge some central executive bodies which had been too much subdivided. This is an important measure to eliminate departmentalism and regionalism in the work of State and economic institutions and guarantee coordinated leadership in production. Departmentalism and regionalism are incorrect ideological viewpoints which place the interests of one's own organization and one's own region above national interests as a whole; they are harmful work methods which greatly impede socialist construction. All State and economic officials must put an end to departmentalism and regionalism. They must always give great attention to the general work of the State and see to it that their quotas of cooperative production are carried out without fail.

Success in all work largely depends on the efforts of cadres, the commanding personnel of the revolution. Experience shows that innovations and miracles are wrought where leading functionaries fight audaciously, standing in the van of the masses and setting practical examples to them, and that work is sluggish where they do not.

This year all the leading functionaries must stand in the forefront of the revolutionary struggle and construction, skilfully organize and guide the masses and set examples to them through their own selfless endeavours. In particular, the leading personnel must strive to eliminate bureaucracy and subjectivism in their work. They must always go to places of work, fully grasp the desire of the producer masses and actual conditions at lower units, working and living with the workers and farmers, before they give guidance to any work. They must give priority to political work and actively bring forth the revolutionary enthusiasm and creative talents of the masses.

The most important revolutionary task facing us is to intensify the ideological revolution and revolutionize and working-classize the whole society. We must never slight the ideological revolution, content with the success in the building of socialism. With the successful progress of socialist construction and with the rapid improvement of the material and cultural well-being of the people, we must intensify the ideological revolution all the more and thoroughly revolutionize and working-classize all of the working people.

We must continue to intensify the education of the working people in Party policies and the revolutionary traditions to arm them firmly with Marxist-Leninist ideology, our Party's Juche idea, so that all of them become true Red soldiers of the Party, communist revolutionaries who devotedly fight for the Party and the revolution.

This year, too, we should thoroughly implement the Party's military line, the main content of which is to turn the entire army into an army of cadres, modernize it from top to bottom, arm all the people and fortify the whole country, and increase the nation's defence capabilities.

This year the Chongryon organizations and Korean nationals in Japan, holding aloft the revolutionary banner of the Juche idea, should strive continuously and vigorously to defend their democratic, national rights and hasten the independent, peaceful reunification of the homeland, to strengthen the international solidarity with the Japanese people and other peoples of the world. The Korean nationals in Japan must completely smash all the splitting and subversive activities of the reactionaries, build the Chongryon organizations more solidly and keep up their struggle, helping and leading each other forward, rallied close around the Chongryon.

Our Party and the Government of the Republic will this year, too, strengthen militant solidarity with the international revolutionary forces and develop friendship and cooperation with all peoples of the world so as to turn the international situation still more favourably to our people's revolutionary cause. We will also resolutely fight to check and frustrate the imperialists' policies of aggression and war and safeguard the peace of Asia and the world, under the unfurled revolutionary banner of the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle.

Comrades,

The revolutionary tasks raised before us this year are very difficult and enormous. All the working people must valiantly get over all difficulties and obstacles and bring about a new, great revolutionary upsurge in socialist construction by giving fuller scope to the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and thus make the year 1973 a decisive year in the carrying out of the Six-Year Plan.

Our struggle is fruitful and our prospect is bright. Only victory and glory are in store for our people who advance under the wise leadership of our Party.

Let us all unite rock-firm around the Party Central Committee and march forward dynamically to fulfil the Six-Year Plan ahead of schedule and achieve the independent, peaceful reunification of the country and the complete victory of socialism.

In accordance with the unanimous will of the entire people, the respected and beloved Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung, the founder and guide of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, was again elected to the Supreme People's Assembly.

Elections to the Supreme People's Assembly and the local People's Assemblies are held. The polling places are enlivened with merry singing and dancing all day long

And best sons and daughters of workers, peasants and working intellectuals and genuine representatives of the 600,000 Korean nationals in Japan were also elected to the Supreme People's Assembly and the local people's assemblies at all levels. They are all infinitely loyal to the Leader and tried and tested in revolutionary practice.

The recent victorious elections marked another milestone in the history of our people.

KOREAN PEOPLE WILL SURELY ACCOMPLISH THEIR NATIONAL REUNIFICATION CAUSE

The Korean people greet the New Year 1973, with burning thirst and passion for the independent, peaceful reunification of their country, which inspires all the revolutionary people with fresh hope and aspiration.

It is the twenty-eighth year since our territory was bisected by the U.S. imperialists' occupation of south Korea. The country's division has brought untold sufferings and miseries upon the Korean people, a homogeneous nation, and is hourly augmenting the misfortunes and pains of the south Korean people today as ever.

National reunification is the burning desire of the entire Korean people and the supreme task of the nation whose fulfilment does not allow a moment's delay; it is the highest demand of our nation and the unanimous desire of the world peace-loving people.

The entire Korean people, who have bitterly suffered from the territorial and national split, have waged a vigorous struggle for achieving the independent, peaceful reunification of their country under the wise guidance of the great Leader of revolution Comrade Kim Il Sung ever since the country's division.

Comrade Kim Il Sung said:

"We always maintain that our homeland should be reunified independently and peacefully without foreign interference. Furthermore we assert that the unity of the whole nation should be achieved, with both sides trusting and respecting each other, despite the difference of systems between the north and south." ("Talk to Correspondents of U.S. Newspaper 'The New York Times,'" Eng. ed., p. 14.)

Comrade Kim Il Sung, always basing himself on the great Juche idea, has advanced the line of reunifying the motherland independently without outside interference, peacefully and by the united strength of the nation, and has wisely led our people to its materialization.

Especially in his historic speech of August 6, 1971, "The Common Struggle of the Revolutionary Peoples of Asia against U.S. Imperialism Will Surely Win Victory," he made a scientific analysis of the internal and external situation turning in favour of the struggle of the peoples for peace, democracy, national independence and social progress and put forward a new proposal for accomplishing the cause of national reunification, the burning desire of our nation. And he, personally organizing and guiding the struggle for putting into practice that proposal, took active measures many times to create all conditions for reunification.

Thanks to his August 6 speech and positive measures, the internal and external situation developed in greater favour of our people's struggle for the independent, peaceful reunification of the country, and north-south high-level talks took place at long last, a north-south joint statement was published and an agreement on the formation and operation of the North-South Coordination Commission was adopted last year. Also in the past year the preliminary talks of the north and south Korean Red Cross organizations came to a conclusion and their full-dress talks started.

The announcement of the north-south joint statement based on the three principles of national reunification—independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity—the adoption of an agreement on the formation and operation of the North-South Coordination Commission and the opening of the north-south Red Cross full-dress talks designed for alleviating the sufferings of compatriots from the country's division and laying a stepping stone for reunification were epochal events in the struggle of the Korean people for national reunification.

They were a brilliant victory of the Juche idea of the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung and his independent line; they were the precious fruits of the consistent efforts made by the Workers' Party of Korea and the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for the independent, peaceful reunification of the country.

After the publication of the north-south joint statement Comrade Kim Il Sung put forward again reasonable proposals for holding various political negotiations such as a joint conference of political parties and social organizations in north and south Korea, or a conference of the north and south Korean authorities or a joint conference of the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly Deputies and the south Korean "National Assemblymen," and for forming a supreme national council, instituting a north-south confederation and effecting extensive exchanges, cooperation and visits of personages in economic, cultural and all other domains. They were positive and fair proposals designed for further developing the struggle of our people for the country's independent, peaceful reunification in a new favourable situation in which a breach has been made in the barriers between north and south.

The Korean people are full of a firm determination to accomplish the national reunification cause as early as possible along the only right line put forth by Comrade Kim Il Sung.

The most important thing in attaining the country's reunification is to thoroughly implement the independent principle of solving the reunification question by our people themselves free from any outside interference.

Our national reunification question is a completely internal affair of Korea; it is a question of ending the territorial division and national split by the U.S. imperialists, achieving the country's full independence and restoring national ties.

The national reunification question must be solved by our people themselves on the principle of independence. Only by so doing is it possible to reunify the country peacefully in conformity with the will of our people and our national interests and firmly ensure the national sovereignty of the Korean people throughout the country.

Attempts to reunify the country in reliance on outside forces will bring nothing but to betray the country to the foreign aggressors and make the country's reunification impossible permanently.

The independent national reunification requires, above all, a north-south collaboration.

The prevailing situation in our country makes it imperative to effect collaboration between north and south for defending our national interests, radically improving the north-south relations and reunifying the country peacefully.

Collaboration is the most principled correlation that the north and south must establish to attain one common goal of independent, peaceful national reunification.

When the north and south do not collaborate but oppose each other, they cannot solve knotty problems even if they have talks and reach agreement.

If the north and south try for superiority and victory opposing each other, it will, in the long run, result in our country's bisection or a conflict between north and south. Confrontation between north and south cannot be a way of solving the internal affair of the nation peacefully and the so-called "confrontation with dialogue" is utterly useless for national reunification, either.

If both sides sincerely want a great national unity and the independent, peaceful reunification of the country, they should effect many-sided collaboration and exchanges between north and south.

The respected and beloved Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung taught:

"To settle fundamental problems for the country's reunification, it is necessary to have contacts and negotiations on a wider scale and in many fields to discuss a number of specific measures for removing the long-accumulated misunderstandings and mistrust between the north and south, promoting understanding and attaining independent, peaceful reunification." ("On Some Problems of Our Party's Juche Idea and the Government of the Republic's Internal and External Policies," Eng. ed., pp. 30-31.)

It is essential for effectively solving the question of the country's independent, peaceful reunification to conduct political exchanges between the north and south Korean authorities and between political parties and social organizations and individual personages in the two parts of Korea.

Economic cooperation and interchange between north and south will render it possible to build a strong independent national economy for the whole country so as to run our national life on our own strength without reliance upon other countries and utilize effectively the natural resources and techniques of north and south for the unified development of the country.

It is evident that cultural cooperation is useful for the unified development of national culture.

It is required to take measures for easing tension and lessening military burden, along with economic and cultural cooperation.

Such measures will help end antagonism between north and south and promote national harmony, and will create possibilities for improving the people's life rapidly.

If many-sided collaboration between north and south is achieved, mutual distrust and misunderstanding will be dispelled to attain a great unity of the nation and the forces of our nation as a single nation will grow greatly to decide its destiny by itself.

Then, severed national ties will be restored and the cause of the country's reunification smoothly accomplished.

In order to promote many-sided collaboration between north and south and achieve the independent, peaceful reunification of the country as soon as possible, it is necessary to institute a north-south confederation for the present.

If a confederation is established, there will be closer contacts, more frequent visits and extensive connections and cooperation between north and south.

For bringing about collaboration between north and south and furthering the independent, peaceful reunification of the country, a policy contrary to the agreed provisions of the north-south joint statement must not be pursued.

One side must not either force its idea, ideal and system upon the other side or suppress believers in the idea, ideal and system of the other side.

Freedoms of speech, the press, assembly, association and demonstration and freedom of political parties' activities should be ensured along with full democracy.

Only by so doing is it possible to promote many-sided collaboration and exchanges between north and south and unite as one all the forces desirous of independent national reunification.

To ensure democracy fully is a prerequisite to north-south collaboration and the great unity of the nation and to the independent, peaceful reunification.

Only when the people of all strata fully express their will can the independent, peaceful reunification of the country be accelerated.

The fair and reasonable line of national reunification laid down by the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung is the only correct guide to the rightest solution of the reunification question, a patriotic banner inspiring our compatriots to a great national unity, and it gives deep confidence and great courage to the entire people of north and south Korea as a bright beacon light shedding the ray of hope for reunification.

Thanks to his wise leadership the 3,000-ri lovely land is now pervaded with the sentiments of national reunification and the 50 million people are fighting energetically to hasten the day of victory and glory, the day of national reunification.

The people in the northern half are effecting a greater revolutionary upsurge on all fronts of socialist construction putting greater spurs to the galloping Chollima for consolidating the foundations for the future prosperity and development of the reunified country and nation.

The patriotic people in south Korea, heartily respecting and revering the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung, are courageously fighting for the right to live, democracy and national reunification against the U.S. imperialist aggressors along the road pointed out by him.

The south Korean people's rising sentiments of independent, peaceful reunification can be killed by no means.

The struggle of the Korean people for the independent, peaceful reunification of their country commands the active support and encouragement of the peace and democracy-loving progressive people of the world, which is a great inspiration to our people.

The Korean people will make every effort to increase their own revolutionary forces and attain a great national unity, and will further strengthen solidarity with the international revolutionary forces, in order to achieve their country's reunification by themselves rejecting all outside forces.

At a time when the sentiments of independent, peaceful reunification are mounting, the U.S. imperialists and reactionaries of all hues do not want Korean reunification; they are now trying more cunningly to hinder our reunification cause. The U.S. imperialists, pretending to support peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification, are working in every way to perpetuate the occupation of south Korea by their aggression troops and the bisection of Korea.

The U.S. imperialists should stop their interference in our internal affairs, withdraw right away from south Korea taking along their aggression troops and death-dealing weapons, and dissolve without delay the "United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea," their tool of aggression.

The Japanese authorities should desist from their scheme to perpetuate the split of Korea, discontinue immediately their reinvasion of south Korea in keeping with the trend of the times, alter their policy of hostility towards the DPRK and adopt a friendly policy.

The south Korean authorities ought to have a true stand of national independence and a patriotic spirit and honestly execute the agreed provisions of the north-south joint statement they solemnly pledged to implement before the whole nation and the world public.

The Korean people under the wise guidance of the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung will take a new giant stride forward in their struggle for the independent, peaceful reunification of the country in the New Year 1973.

With no amount of desperate efforts can the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese militarists and all reactionaries halt the grand onward movement of our people.

The Korean people will surely accomplish the historic cause of national reunification independently and peacefully by their united efforts free from any outside interference.

Anti-Imperialist, National-Liberation Cause of the Tri-continental Peoples Is Sure to Win

In accordance with the decision of the Asian, African and Latin American People's Solidarity Organization, a "week of international solidarity with the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America" is marked from January 3 to 10 in our country under the sponsorship of the Korean Committee for Asian-African Solidarity.

On this significant occasion the Korean people extend warm congratulations and militant solidarity to all the revolutionary peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The Asian, African and Latin American peoples are now waging a vigorous struggle against U.S.-led imperialism and colonialism and for freedom and liberation, consolidated national independence and social progress. Today the strong tide of the anti-imperialist, national-liberation movement is rising with an irresistible force and the great storm of revolution sweeping away imperialism and colonialism is raging over the vast three continents.

The Korean people and the peoples of China, Indochina and Japan, and other Asian peoples are unfolding a resolute anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle in close unity, dealing telling blows to the U.S. imperialists and their stooges and making a great contribution to the world progressive peoples' common cause of peace, national independence and socialism.

The Arab peoples including the Palestinian people, the African peoples and the Latin American peoples encouraged by the victorious onward movement of the Cuban revolution are conducting armed struggles against U.S.-led imperialism and its stooges with greater energy or unrolling a powerful struggle to smash their aggressive and subversive activities, consolidate national independence and carry forward their revolutions.

The cursed chains of colonial slavery are going to pieces and the colonial system of imperialism is falling apart beyond retrieve under the heavy blows from the anti-imperialist, national-liberation struggle waged by the tri-continental peoples.

The great Leader of revolution Comrade Kim Il Sung said:

"The obtaining situation demands that the peoples of all the revolutionary countries, fighting countries, of the world unite closely and make more violent attack on the imperialists going downhill in disorder and finally cut the windpipe of imperialism."

In recent years the general situation has turned in greater favour of the revolutionary peoples. The forces of the peoples fighting for peace, democracy, national independence and socialism are growing stronger from day to day, whereas the imperialist forces are fast weakening. In particular, U.S. imperialism, the ring-leader of world reaction and the bulwark of colonialism, is in a serious political, economic and military crisis.

However, the aggressive nature of imperialism never changes and it refuses to withdraw from its old position of its own accord even when its strength is weak.

Having got into a hot water, the U.S. imperialists have come out with the notorious "Nixon Doctrine" and are working craftily to make Asians fight Asians in Asia, Africans fight Africans in Africa and Latin Americans fight Latin Americans in Latin America. Employing the "double-dealing tactics" of holding an olive branch in one hand and brandishing a bayonet in the other, they are more frantically engrossed in manoeuvres of aggression and war under the cloak of "peace."

The prevailing situation requires the revolutionary peoples of the three continents to wage a more determined struggle against imperialism and colonialism and concentrate the spearhead of struggle especially against U.S. imperialism. Only when people battle resolutely against U.S. imperialism is it possible to win victory in the struggle for national liberation, independence, democracy and socialism and defend world peace.

In order to frustrate the U.S. imperialist policy of aggression and war, it is important for the Asian, African and Latin American peoples and all the world revolutionary peoples to firmly unite and wage the anti-U.S. struggle everywhere more actively and more extensively. When they deal collective blows to U.S. imperialism and dismember it everywhere, it will be ruined in the end.

The struggle against Japanese militarism is a struggle to safeguard peace in Asia and the rest of the world and a main link in the anti-U.S. imperialist struggle. The U.S. imperialists are utilizing actively the military and economic potentialities of Japan for the execution of their policy of aggression in Asia, while the Japanese militarists are seeking to carry into effect their ambition of overseas expansion, availing themselves of the U.S. imperialists' Asian strategy.

The tri-continental peoples and the world peace-loving peoples should further intensify the struggle against Japanese militarism as well as U.S. imperialism and thwart its aggressive ambition by concerted action.

The Korean people who are waging an energetic struggle for expediting a complete victory of socialism and achieving the independent, peaceful reunification of their country highly value the tri-continental peoples' support for and solidarity with their just cause and draw a great encouragement from it.

Holding aloft the revolutionary banner of the anti-imperialist, anti-U.S. struggle, the Korean people will, in the future, too, as in the past, fight more staunchly against U.S. imperialism and Japanese militarism in firm unity with the peoples of the socialist countries, with the tri-continental peoples and with all the peace-loving peoples of the world, and will give an active support and encouragement to the anti-imperialist, national-liberation struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples.

The U.S. imperialists will be certainly driven out of Asia, Africa and Latin America and the anti-imperialist, national-liberation cause of the tri-continental peoples is sure to win.

"Firm and Solid Basis of Korean Reunification"

The three principles of national reunification laid down by the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung are enjoying active support and welcome from the peoples of the world.

The respected and beloved Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung is receiving telegrams supporting the three principles of national reunification and the north-south joint statement based on them from leaders of Parties and governments and from political parties, public organizations and fighting organizations in many countries of the world. And progressive public figures and personages of all strata in various countries are issuing statements manifesting their support and newspapers, news agencies and radios in different countries are expressing their active support.

The Chinese newspaper Renmin Ribao noted in its editorial:

"The three principles laid down by Premier Kim Il Sung point out the right road to the independent, peaceful reunification of Korea for the Korean people."

In his congratulatory telegram to the respected and beloved Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung Chairman Salem Rubaya Ali of the Presidential Council of the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen said:

"The three principles of national reunification advanced by Comrade Kim Il Sung i.e. the line of achieving national reunification independently and peacefully without interference of outside force and attaining a great national unity transcending the differences of ideology, ideal and system are the firm and solid basis of Korean reunification."

"In particular, the publication of the joint statement based on the three principles signifies the victory of the sharp and seasoned idea of Comrade Kim Il Sung."

In his congratulatory telegram to Comrade Kim Il Sung, Major General Mohamed Siad Barre, President of the Supreme Revolutionary Council of the Somali Democratic Republic, stressed:

"The talks held between north and south Korea mark an epochal turning-point."

"Our Somali Democratic Republic thinks that an agreement regarding the three principles of national reunification reached at the recent north-south talks is a striking proof of the justness of the line and policy for the independent, peaceful reunification of Korea set forth by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea under the wise and outstanding leadership of Comrade Kim Il Sung."

Masaharu Hatanaka, Representative Director of the Japan-Korea Association, emphasized:

"The developments of today vividly show how correct is the line of the Workers' Party of Korea and the DPRK Government for the independent, peaceful reunification of Korea which is firmly based on the Juche idea of Premier Kim Il Sung, the great Leader of the Korean people. The north-south joint statement represents a brilliant victory of this line for independent, peaceful reunification. The first part of the north-south joint statement gives the three principles of national reunification laid down by Premier Kim Il Sung. This is a very good thing."

Warmly supporting and welcoming the north-south joint statement, Jack A. Smith, Managing Editor of the American Guardian, said:

"Progressive journalists of the United States think that a complete agreement reached on the three principles of national reunification advanced by Premier Kim Il Sung is a great victory scored by the Workers' Party of Korea and the DPRK Government and the Korean people in their struggle for the independent, peaceful reunification of their country."

In his telegram to Comrade Kim Il Sung, Secretary-general of the Chile-Korea Friendship and Cultural Association pointed out:

"We are quite sure that though the way to national reunification may be arduous, Korea will be reunified, for your great Juche idea illumines brightly the future of Korea."

"National reunification, the loftiest desire of your glorious and valuable life, is undoubtedly approaching."

David Docket, an English research worker of Asian affairs, said:

"The three principles of national reunification set forth by Premier Kim Il Sung fully accord with the burning desire of the entire Korean people and are the most reasonable."

"They, therefore, will enjoy full support of all the peace-loving peoples of the whole world."

The struggle of our people to achieve the independent, peaceful reunification of the country commands active support from more and more world people as the days go by.

Under the sagacious guidance of the great Leader Comrade Kim Il Sung our people will surely achieve the cause of national reunification.
